Centre Culturel Suisse of Paris

The co-directors of the Centre Culturel Suisse of Paris, Jean-Paul Felley & Olivier Kaeser, will be showing a very large drawing by Swiss artist Didier Rittener, transferred with trichloroethylene onto a piece of silk (3.50 x 14m), hanging from the ceiling in a spiral. At the same time, young artists from France and Switzerland will present new works. Among those being introduced will be Florian Germann (CH), Vincent Lamoureux (FR), Adrien Missika (FR) und Denis Savary (CH).

plug.in Basel

Under the direction of Annette Schindler, plug.in in Basel, space for contemporary art for electronic media has invited the artist collective Eva and Franco Mattes aka 0100101110101101.org of Italy. Both belong to Europe's most important media artists. Eva and Franco Mattes are considered pioneers in the net.art movement of the 1990s and became especially well-known for their unconventional communication tactics, such as the creation of intentionally incorrect announcements and lies, which they channeled into public spheres.

Kaskadenkondensator Basel

Operating year-round, the space for contemporary art and performance in the work space Warteck pp will this year host Broll and the publishing companies AKV and Spector Books. Broll represents artists who produce copies of works by famous colleagues, while AKV of Berlin publishes, for example, books by anonymous authors. The Leipzig publisher Spector Books considers the medium of books to be a stage for collective knowledge production at the interface of art, design and science.
